Course Overview

Industry Training QLD offers hands-on, nationally recognised machinery training delivered weekly, subject to numbers, from Wednesday to Friday. These practical courses are designed for individuals seeking to develop or formalise their operating skills in a range of commonly used machinery.

Each course runs over 2 days, however, because our training is competency-based, students may be signed off in just 1 day if they demonstrate sufficient knowledge and skill during assessment.

Theory components are completed at our Toll Street office, while the practical training and assessment take place at our Bluewater training farm.

These units are ideal for:

- Individuals entering the civil construction or agriculture industries
- Workers seeking formal recognition of existing skills
- Employers upskilling staff for on-site requirements
- Participants pursuing plant competency for licensing or employment purposes

Entry Requirements

To enrol in any machinery unit, participants must:

- Be 16 years of age or older
- Possess or apply for a USI (Unique Student Identifier) – Apply here
- Provide three (3) forms of valid ID (see final page for accepted types)
- Wear closed-in footwear for all practical sessions
- Successfully complete a short Language, Literacy and Numeracy (LLN) quiz

Pre-requisites: None

Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL)

If you have previous experience operating the machinery you wish to be assessed in, you may be eligible for RPL to shorten your training time. Evidence such as:

- Workplace logbooks
- Photographic/video evidence
- Supervisor or employer references
- Prior training certificates

…may be considered as part of the assessment.

 Please note:
Overseas licences and non-accredited training cannot be accepted as direct RPL, but they may be used to support your case.
All students must complete both theory and practical assessment to be deemed competent.

For a personalised assessment of your prior experience, please contact our Training Manager before enrolment.
